Second sewer rate hike looms

By MICHAEL DANIELS

For the second year in a row customers of the Bethel sewer system are looking at a double-digit rate hike.

Last year the rate increased by 10.73 percent; this year it is set to go up by another 12.5 percent, if selectmen approve the budget draft currently under consideration

The two increases have been driven largely by debt service n capital improvement projects, Town N told the Board of Selectmen Monday.

Such rate hikes are hardly the norm for Bethel sewer

The rate held steady in the five years prior to last year's increase, and Cole projects "worse case" increases of only 1.5 to 3.5 percent for the coming four years.

Those increases could be even less if more new customers come on the system.

"Basically, the only way to keep a check on sewer rates is to add customers." he told the board.

Debt service makes up over a third of the Sewer Department's "core budget," Cole said.

A BEAUTIFUL DAY

To the Editor:

"It was a beautiful day in our neighborhood — sunny, breezy and bright. This longest day of the year, June 20, Father's Day and the Summer Solstice, was one to celebrate, and we did. Many, many thanks to all those who helped make the Midsummer Festival such a wonderful day: Conni and Ted St. Pierre, Dick Taylor, Jim and Carrie Sysko, Jonathan and Kate Goldberg, Jack Nordahl, Betsy Cooper, Jewel Clark, Marie Hickey, Eric Paul and Groan & McGurn, Monica Mann, Timberlake's Home Store, the Bethel Citizen, the Bethel Police Department, all of the sculpture race participants, and so many other helping hands.

And extra special thanks to Woody Hughes for the joyous pottery trophies and to Arla Patch and Jim Owen for being sculpture race judges.

We are grateful to Gould Academy and to the Bethel Library for the use of their facilities for special events, and to the Town of Bethel for use of the Bethel common and gazebo.

Without the generous sponsorship of the Mahoosuc Arts Council and The Maine Community Foundation the Midsummer Festival would not have been possible, and we thank them

In addition, the following individuals, businesses and organizations have been banner supporters, and we celebrate you: The Bethel Inn and Country Club, The Outlook, Vickie Irons, Rosie D. Trentham, Dick and Wendy Penley, Josiah and Joanna Drummond, Seabury and Sharon Lyon, Dick and Sally Taylor, Sue Ellen Richardson and Douglas Topper, Carrie and Jim Sysko.

It was a beautiful day in our neighborhood. Thank you for being there.

FOURTH OF JULY COMMUNITY PICNIC

To the Editor:

Every year since 1993, the Bethel Historical Society has sponsored the Fourth of July Community Picnic held on the grounds of the Dr. Moses Mason House, which continues a fradition established by Dr. Moses Mason in the 1850s when citizens of Bethel and the surrounding area gathered in his orchard on the Fourth of July for a picnic, patriotic orations and brass music.

Today, this event has become, in some people's opinion, "the highlight of my summer," "my favorite Bethel event," or something to that effect.

In addition, the society's Regional History Center has also been selected this year as the location of another brass music event when on Saturday, July 31, 26 members of the Yankee Brass Band, dressed in 1850s era firemen's uniforms, will play authentic 19th century music with Civil War era brass instruments (sax horns, cornopeans, cornets, ophicleides, and overthe-shoulder altos, tenors, and basses) on the grounds of the Dr. Moses Mason House (weather permitting) or at the West Parish Congregational Church (if rainy). This concert is expected to last approximately one hour and a half. The members of this band come from throughout the United States, represent all walks of life, and share a passion for early band music. They gather at Colby College during the last week in July and play in several Maine and New Hampshire communities.

To offset the expenses of these two events, contributions are being solicited from anyone interested in bringing these remarkable groups to Bethel. Tax-deductible donations can be made in any amount and sent to the society at P.O. Box 12, Bethel, ME 04217-0012. Further information can be obtained by calling the society at 824-2908 or (800) 824-2910 or checking the Web site: www.bethelhistorical.org. All contributors will become sponsors unless they wish to remain anonymous. Let's make July in Bethel a special place for brass music.

ALDER RIVER GRANGE 145 TURNS 100

To the Editor:

Members of Alder River Grange 145 will celebrate their Grange's centenary of existence on June 27 with a special program open to those interested in attending. Area Grangers and several state officers are expected to be in attendance.

Festivities will get underway at 4 p.m. with a social hour followed by a chicken barbecue, historical slide show, and dance featuring the music of the Richard Felt Orchestra.

Alder River Grange 145 was first organized in the mid-1870s, but surrendered its charter in the early 1890s. It was re-organized in June 1904 at Locke Mills (beside Alder River, thus its name) at the Mount Abram Hotel which stood across from the present Round Pond Corner Store. State Grange Deputy W. S. Larabee was in charge of the meeting. Its charter was issued by the National Grange on June 27, 1904.

Since many of the organizers of this Grange were East Bethel people, it was decided on July 8, 1904 to build a hall on land donated by James Madison Bartlett of East Bethel.

A building committee consisting of Fred B. Howe, Eugene Bean and George K. Hastings was appointed. Funds for the construction were raised by card parties and suppers. Work on the building began in April 1905 and the structure was first used, according to the late Eva M. Bean, for a supper and dance on Nov. 16, 1905.

Since that time, the hall has served as a community center for East Bethel with countless dances, parties, socials, card parties, receptions, school reunions, classes, etc., in addition to Grange functions.

Measuring approximately 52 by 24 feet, the hall was first wired for electricity in 1929. There was also once a stable in the back that was later moved to the Hastings' farm in the

During World War II, twenty-one members of Alder River were serving in the armed forces out of a total membership of sixty three. The Grange paid the dues of all those serving their

Probably the greatest period of Grange activity was in the 1950s when the order was heavily involved in community projects and improving the hall.

During this time, Alder River won several state and national awards for such projects as maintaining the East Bethel Cemetery, painting and repairing the East Bethel Church, providing milk for the East Bethel School lunch program, and building a new kitchen and shed for the

Since 1979 when the 75th anniversary was celebrated, the Grange has observed its incorporation anniversary every five years. Improvements to the hall have preceded each anniversary and there has been new members added as a result.

In 1904, the first officers of the Grange were: master, Frank Abbott; overseer, Henry Edson Bartlett; lecturer, James Swan; steward, Eugene Bean; assistant steward, Ormando Farwell; chaplain, Lizzie Bartlett; treasurer, May Farewell; secretary, Hester Kimball; gatekeeper, Edgar Swan; Ceres, Linnie Abbott; Pomona, Carrie Bartlett; Flora, Nina Swan; lady assistant steward, Jennie Swan.

Today, members serve the community in various ways. In addition, the Grange supports a number of charitable organizations, holds public suppers and special events, and sponsors an agricultural exhibit annually at the Fryeburg Fair.

of the parcel of land on which the park sits. If nothing is done, he predicted, even by next year the river would be cutting into the park itself.

"If you wait until next year, it's a crapshoot on how much of the park you're going to lose," he told the selectmen.

Outfall pipe downstream of the park December's floodwaters also washed away a 30-to-40foot length of the 12-inch pipe that carried effluent from the wastewater treatment plant.

The pipe now ends at the riverbank, discharging its effluent there.

This is a problem because the plant's license from the Maine Department of Environmental Protection calls for the effluent to be diluted by a factor of 200 to one, as it was when the pipe ended near the middle of the river.

But at the riverbank, where the pipe now ends, the dilution factor is only one-to-one. If the stipulated dilution factor is not re-established, Allenwood said, DEP would impose stricter - and more costly -- requirements on the operation of the plant.

treatment (Note: the plant's effluent is already highly diluted. Each liter of discharged water contains approximately 3 milligrams or .0001 ounce - of solids. according to treatment plant operator Rob Gundersen.)

Solutions

the Simply replacing washed-away section of the outfall pipe would not be a long-term solution, Allenwood said.

If the pipe is replaced but the bank is not stabilized "there's a pretty good chance that [the pipel is just going to wash away again, just because of the way it's left hanging out there."

To resolve the problem, FEMA has agreed to pay 75 percent of the cost of riprapping a total of 350 to 400 feet of riverbank upstream of the

That's a longer length than eroded in December, Allenwood said, but "that's what's really going to stabilize it."

The second part of the solution will be to replace the pipe, but redesign it to run below the riverbed and cover it with riprap. The total cost of the work is estimated at $201,000, with $150,750 to come from FEMA and $50,250 from the town.

Of that total figure, $115,000 would be for the riverbank stabilization, $80,000 for the outfall pipe replacement, and $6,000 for construction inspection.

Tight timeline If the work is to be completed this year — as Allenwood strongly urged - things will have to happen fast.

DEP regulations limit bank stabilization activities to low-water periods of summer, which means the project would have to be designed. permitted, approved by voters and contracted in time for work to begin in August or September.

After that the weather gets iffy. "Once you hit the middle of October, and definitely when you hit November, you're going to have some serious rains - it's almost like our rainy season," said Reggie Brown.

Stan Howe was a bit more optimistic about the weather, and willing to wait in order to be sure the board had a firm price tag when presenting the projects to town voters.

"I'd rather gamble on the weather and be sure of the cost," Howe said.

"And I've seen the river really low in October," he added later.

The projects are expected to go to voters sometime late in the summer.

In the meantime, to kick start the process the selectmen agreed to spend $7,250 from the Sewer System Development Charge Fund to pay for design work.

There was some discussion regarding the propriety of spending SSDC funds on such work, since by ordinance they are to be used only for increasing the capacity of the treatment system.

But there was general agreement that increasing the current dilution factor met that test.

"Without question, with the lower dilution factor, the pounds of pollutants you can discharge to the river will be significantly reduced, which means the capacity will be reduced," Allenwood said. "There's no question [the work] affects capacity."

Dresser agreed. "I think we're on really solid ground,"

More moose warnings

AUGUSTA — For the second time in two weeks, State Police are warning motorists of wandering moose on the highways. Overnight Sunday, two moose-vehicle collisions in southern Maine damaged two tractor-trailers and two cars. The Chief of the State Police, Colonel Craig A. Poulin said motorists driving at night need to be extra careful, because this is the peak season for the animals to be on the move. Poulin recommends motorists slow down, using their high beams as much as possible and to keep a watchful eve out for the animals. The two latest collisions took place on I-295 in Freeport and on the turnpike in Litchfield. Poulin said the crash in Freeport was the most serious. He said a tractor-trailer struck the moose in the southbound lane, near the Brunswick town line, and the impact pushed the animal into the passing lane, where it was then struck by a car and a second tractor-trailer. The car overturned, but the driver escaped serious injury. The moose collision on the turnpike took place in the southbound lane of mile 94 in Litchfield, and involved a car. There were no injuries. Two weeks ago, there were four moose collisions on the turnpike in the same night. The Maine Department of Transportation has published a brochure entitled "Moose: Danger Ahead," which is available from their Web site www.maine.gov.dot.

NRC highlights global warming

PORTLAND— The Natural Resources Council of Maine has begun a campaign it says highlights the effects of global warming on people around the state. The council also has suggestions for how Mainers can conserve energy. Rodney Hall, a maple syrup producer, says the sugaring season begins a week earlier than in his grandfather's days. And Connie King, who runs Lost Valley ski area in Auburn, says her business is hurt by global warming. She says the lack of natural snow keeps people from thinking about a ski outing. The council says that using energy efficient appliances and renewable power sources can help reduce the effect of global warming. Council members also encourage citizens to talk with state and federal lawmakers about curbing pollution and encouraging efficient energy use.

Watch for electrical wires

AUGUSTA—Painting and construction season is underway, and Central Maine Power Co. is reminding contractors and homeowners to take extra safety measures when working near power lines. The utility points out that the coating on some power lines — particularly service cables to homes — is not a safety insulation to protect workers from electrical shock. Accidentally touching any CMP conductor or fittings either directly or with tools and equipment carries a risk of serious injury or death. Central Maine Power offers the following tips for staying safe at a job site: 1) Plan ahead. Check the job site for hazards, and be sure to look up for power lines and electrical equipment. 2) Call CMP for a safety inspection. Trained CMP personnel will check equipment and insulate exposed conductors and fittings that might pose a risk. 3) Keep workers, tools, and equipment at least 10 feet from unprotected power lines and fittings. It's for safety, and it's the law. 4) Maintain 10-foot clearance when positioning ladders. Carry ladders horizontally around job sites. Also maintain 10-foot clearance when using scaffolding, hoists, or cranes, and when raising the bed of a dump truck. 5) Don't touch a crane or dump truck operating near power lines. Touching the equipment will put a person in the path to ground if it accidentally contacts a power line. 6) Call 1-888-DIG-SAFE. Utilities will locate and clearly mark underground facilities so workers can stay clear and work safely.

Beware of grant scam

AUGUSTA - Attorney General Steven Rowe has warned against callers who claim Maine consumers are eligible for a government grant, and all they have to do is pay them $250 in order to receive it. "These government grant calls are just the latest variation on scams that claim you are eligible for money, but in order to get it, you must pay," said Rowe. Once the caller gets someone's interest, the caller asks for money or a credit card or checking account number. Some of the callers claim to be representing organizations that can help obtain government grants for an advance fee.

At 6:17 a.m. Officer Ovide Richard observed a truck fail to stop at the stop sign at Sunday River Road and Martin Lane. He stopped the truck, and a license check showed the driver had a warrant for failure to pay fines. He also had three active suspensions. In addition, the registration plates for the vehicle belonged to another vehicle. Allen J. Scott, 45, was arrested for the warrant. He was charged with OAS and illegally attached plates.

At 5 p.m. Chief Alan Carr responded to an accident involving three motorcycles on the West Bethel Road. The operators were all from New York.

Wednesday, June 16

At 4:59 p.m. on Route 2 Officer Shane Thomas issued a citation to Harold R. Powell Jr., 62, of Hanover for OUI.

Tuesday, June 15

At 10:47 p.m. police received a report from four complainants that a male subject had shot at their vehicle on Mason Street with a BB gun. The driver did not want to press charges. Officers Mike Grenier, Randall Baker and Ovide Richard responded to Mason Street and observed six male subjects standing by a vehicle. The officers asked where the weapon was. One subject had in his possession several pellet/BB guns, and admitted firing one of them in the area of the vehicle. The weapons were seized.

Some of the photos were used in two books recently published by the committee. The first, "The Smile of Providence: A History of Gilead, Maine," was written by Howard Reiche and Hugh Chapman.

Because they had more pictures than could be fit in to the first book, Reiche and Chapman decided to do a picture book as well.

Both books will be on sale at the hall.

Vendors will sell food and craft items along Depot Street. From noon to 5 p.m., there will be music by local musicians at the corner of Bridge and Depot streets.

From 1 to 3 p.m., there will be games for children behind the Town Hall.

Time capsule planned later Lin Chapman said earlier this week plans for the events appear to be going well. Several town buildings will be decked out in bunting, she said, and the Town Hall is receiving a fresh coat of paint.

The Bicentennial Committee also plans a wrap-up event this fall, she said, probably in the form of a town supper.

At that time, a time capsule may be buried. Chapman said the committee decided it would be a good idea to wait until after the celebration to put together a capsule, so that newspaper accounts of the June celebration could be included.

Each lot would have its own well and septic system.

Aloisio said the project calls for a "substantial common area," that could include cross-country ski trails.

The site is adjacent to the Sunday River, which is in a resource protection area, so all parts of the development would be at least 250 feet away from the river.

Planning drainage for the project will be complex, he said, because it drains into Merrill, Monkey, Barker and Dug Hill brooks, all ending up eventually in the Sunday

The Maine Department of Environmental Protection will also review the project.

The lot sizes are designed, said Aloisio, "for people willing to make a substantial investment, not just mini-

The bulk of that expense was incurred in upgrading the system's mains.

Mains in poor condition and in need of replacement have now dropped to below 10 percent of total inventory, he said.

The Way I See It

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department

I, for one, am really glad that summer has arrived. So far it's been on the cool side and that's fine with me. It is usually right about this time of the year that we start experiencing some darned hot and humid days. We've been pretty lucky so far.

I like the summer weather on the cooler side for a number of reasons. Low nighttime temperatures are much more comfortable for sleeping. I hate having a fan blowing on me all night and I know there are nights ahead when two fans will be necessary. But for now it's quite pleasant and I do like that.

I also like the idea that one can work outside without dropping from heat exhaustion. Notice I said idea, because I haven't actually spent a lot of time working outside, but if I want to I could do it without sweat running into my eyes and elsewhere.

The best thing about the cooler weather is the clothing options. I can still wear bulgefriendly clothing without being too hot. I favor slacks or jeans and long-sleeve, bulky tops to cover a multitude of bulges and flab. All too soon I will have to let a lot more hang out than I care to or suffer extreme discomfort.

There was a time when I wore cute little shorts and halter tops on hot summer days and looked pretty darn good. Of course, those were younger and slimmer days. Who the heck am I kidding; those were childhood days.

Though even in adulthood I could wear Bermuda shorts and a tank top and look okay. Even a bathing suit didn't prove to be a total embarrassment. But that was a long time ago and now with my ever-expanding shape, self-respect and social decency dictate that I keep myself covered.

I haven't even owned a bathing suit in years and years. I had a brief lapse in reality a few weeks ago when I considered buying a bathing suit thinking I might go swimming with the grandkids this summer. A trip to the department store slapped me back into reality in a hurry.

Have you seen what's out there for bathing suits? What are they thinking? Surely the designers had no one weighing over 100 pounds in mind when they fashioned these little bits of material and called them swimwear.

If I ever do wear a bathing suit again I certainly don't want a giant hot pink hibiscus on my butt.

I actually found one in my size, or at least according to the tag it was, but parts of me that it would not cover could get me arrested.

Some of the bathing suits, if they did come in my size and praise be that they don't, I wouldn't even be able to figure out how to put them on. They seemed to be more like a contraption of straps with little pockets of material than bathing suits. And those little thong numbers, well, don't they just give a whole new meaning to wedgie!

I can only imagine what a woman of the Victorian era would think if she could see the swimwear of 2004. I can only imagine what the men of that era would think.

I wouldn't care to revisit that period when women were treated as second-rate citizens. but after seeing the current bathing suit styles, the top to bottom coverage of the mid-1800's does have a certain amount of appeal to me.

The women did not wear bathing suits; they wore bathing dresses. They were neck high, long-sleeve affairs that went down to mid-shin and weights were often sewn into the hems so they wouldn't billow up in the water and reveal anything. And a matching pair of bloomers down to the ankles were also required. Imagine what it was like to swim in those outfits. At least they concealed the bulges along with everything else.

It just so happens that I received two catalogs today. One was from a company that markets to mature full-figured women and one that markets to a much younger and slimmer audience. The first catalog had a few bathing suits that were one piece and the basic style was okay, but the patterns were loud, garish floral prints. If I ever do wear a bathing suit again I certainly don't want a giant hot pink hibiscus on my butt.

The other catalog had a number of slinky little bathing suits in both one piece and two, but I think some of the one-piece suits had less material than a handkerchief. I suppose they would be fine on the size 2 figure that was available, but what amazed me was that they were also available up to size 4X. The only thing that was more amazing was a two-piece bathing suit made of some miracle fiber that was one size fits all!

The way I see it this won't be the year that I buy a new bathing suit. If the weather stays cool I won't even have to think about it and if it gets so hot that I feel I need the relief I can always drape myself with a sheet, weight down the ends, put on a pair of bloomers and call it a swimming dress.

It has been a busy week for Lorene and I, Debbie and Owen Brown. anyway. Praise Assembly of God in Rumford Center has held evangelism meetings with Rev. Gerald Mayham and his wife Phyllis, from the Potomac District of the Assemblies of God. The Mayhams themselves come from Virginia, which is part of the Potomac District. Rev. Mayham was delivered of 17 years of drug addiction and has quite a testimony. He also has an inexhaustible supply of Bible verses to share with all who will listen, and he has the ability to make almost everyone listen. He is not content to let anyone go without hearing the salvation message of Jesus Christ. That man, who is a grandfather twice over, has an incredible supply of energy, also, and even the young folk had hard work to keep up with him.

On Sunday afternoon, Debbie and Owen took the Mayhams to the seashore and treated them to fresh lobster.

Pastor Justin Thacker and the Mayhams visited Lorene and I on Monday. Of course, since we were having something special, which I am sure Brother Mayham would say should be an everyday walk for the Christian, Ralph had to work extra this week and only got to hear him Sunday morning.

Tuesday, Pastor Thacker took them to Lewiston where his wife works and then to The Good Shepherd Food Bank where they loaded up with food to be boxed and given

So Wednesday afternoon after Owen Brown and Mary Thacker got out of work, they joined Randy Davis, Pastor Thacker and the Mayhams and went to part of Rumford and delivered the food and the Gospel to families there. Debbie. Lorene and I staved at for the Lord should be backed up with prayer. After they all got back to the church we prepared for the final service that was well attended. Then those that wanted to went to McDonald's for food and fellowship.

As the Mayhams were leaving early Thursday morning, to go back to Virginia, we all prayed for them and Pastor Thacker, who had to get them to the airport, and wished them Godspeed. We really were sorry to see them go. They are a delightful couple. I wish I had their boldness to share the love of Jesus Christ to all I meet, as He has done so much for me.

Ann Fitzmorris and I went out for supper Thursday evening topping off seven evenings out of eight that I had been out somewhere. I forgot to mention I accompanied Gerry Shimamura and Becky Ricker to Auburn last Friday evening to attend a Zone Rally of the Church of the Nazarene. The missionary that spoke was from the area of South Africa that includes several other countries such as Swaziland. He has a wide area to cover.

Debbie and Owen Brown attended a dance recital that their grandson, John Walker, was in. I am very fond of John but I was glad that they are his grandparents and not I (actually I am sure they are, too) because I think one more thing to attend this week would have definitely been too much for me.

the little goslings fly a few feet the other day. I would think he was very young to be doing Friday night and meet my that but apparently not. It was a good thing he could because he was in the road and a car was coming.

to buy Maggie Ring's property, as we need some of the area kept as natural as poslandscape any good. There are they build, but that is not true of all and I am not thrilled to look at the hills and see buildings where I used to see trees. John always said he was glad he would probably be gone by the church and prayed since the time it changed too much, we believe that any endeavor and I am sure he would find it a bit much anyway the way it is now.

Richard Grover Last week was an interesting and busy one for me. I flew to Albuquerque, N.M., on June 11 to attend a five-day training course for the Civil Air Patrol (CAP), taking place at Kirtland Air Force Base on June 13 through June 18.

The course was the Inspector General (IG) college, I was surprised to see one of mandatory for all IG's at the wing or higher level. My plan was to arrive at the base on daughter, Anita, Saturday at around noon for some hiking in the White Mountains of New Mexico, about 200 miles I was glad Greenwood voted south of Albuquerque (ABQ). Trouble was, things did not start out well for me.

My plane was over an hour sible. Our wilderness is fast late arriving at the ABQ, being filled with housing, making it a little after midand it usually does not do our night when I got there. I got my rental car and arrived at some who try to disturb the Kirtland AFB at somewhere area as little as possible when around 2 a.m. and checked in at billeting.

The lady there told me that they were nearly booked, but I could stay Saturday and Sunday and might have to move to off-base quarters for Monday through Friday. (I later found out that the computer cancelled my reservation because my arrival time was the day after my scheduled date, since it was now after midnight). She gave me a map of the base and key to a room near the "other billeting office," which was about a mile away on the other side of the base.

I am generally a pretty good navigator, but I was beginning to feel pretty tired; it was very dark out and the map they gave me intentionally left out some of the streets for "security reasons."

At any rate, I was soon thoroughly disoriented, which was reflected by my driving pattern, pulling over at street corners to read the street signs or study my map. Soon I was pulled over by a security policeman in a very large pickup truck and ordered to get on the sidewalk. Once I convinced the policeman I helpful in pointing me in the correct direction.

I was soon happy to be dragging my luggage down the corridor to my room for the night. I inserted the key in the else already sleeping there.

By now, it was nearly 3 a.m., and I was contemplating sleeping in the car. No. I decided to go back to billeting and see if they had another room or else give me my money back. Soon, lost again.

policeman and convinced him all stations in life contribute to lead me to billeting, which time for a good cause. he did. Soon I was in a smaller.

but still nice room — finally.

That afternoon, Anita and I began a delightful hike to the crest of a ridge about 9,000 feet up in the White Mountains of New Mexico.

There we set up our tent in a small depression just out of the wind where we had panoramic views in almost every direction. Grassy slopes ascended the slopes to the very tops of some 10,000 foot mountains, broken by a few ponderosa and Douglas fir tree stands where elk and deer rested out of sun and sight. A lone elk grazed far below our tent as the evening dusk set

Next morning, we continued over the ridge and down the canyon on the other side to complete a large loop back to our cars at the end of the road. Along the way we watched was not a "DUI," he was very numerous elk, a few deer, a ferret harassing birds in a thicket, a hen turkey with hatchlings, and innumerable other birds. We made it Fred and Mandie Curtis and back to the cars with only a few sore muscles and some door, opened it and stepped itchy legs resulting from the inside, only to find someone numerous stinging nettles that dotted the trails.

> I spent the next five days in the IG college, where I made new friends from Montana to Arizona and Florida to Hawaii and Alaska.

For me this was just one of many potential rewards This time, I was pro-active; of belonging to a nonprofit I attracted another security organization where people of birthday, Saturday, June 12, at the Veteran's Legion Hall with over 100 friends and relatives, some from out of state. There were many gifts and cards and lots of kisses and hugs. A buffet was enjoyed and lots of fun for all. A big birthday cake was cut by sister Karlene Bachelder. We wish them a great future.

Call to worship was held Sunday morning, at 9 a.m., at the Newry Community Church with Pastor Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and daughter Nancy at the organ. Thought for the day by Sue Wight, "We need one another." Scripture readings by Owen Wight, Sue and Nancy. The message of the day was, "What is Life All About?" from St. John 8:12. "Then spoke Jesus again unto them, saying I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." A prayer followed, hymn sung, benediction, postlude,

Northern Forest Heritage Park

The Northern Forest Heritage Park Trust is proud to announce that Public Service of New Hampshire has become a founding member of its new Corporate Partners Program through a $5,000 investment donation for program development. Pat McDermott, director of Community and Economic Development for PSNH, presented the check to NFHP Board chairman Haven Neal during a visit.

According to McDermott, "The Northern Forest Heritage Park's work in both community and economic development through heritage based tourism and cultural heritage education is critical to expanding this region's economic base. We have watched Heritage Park take on a very challenging community lead ership role and work hard to achieve its mission and goals such as: the Logging Camp Interpretation Center, the Artisans Gift Shop featuring the work of 55 local artisans and small entrepreneurs. Festival du Bois, Scenic Heritage River Boat Tours, and now becoming the permanent home of the Northern Forest Moose Tours. Heritage Park is giving people a reason to come to the area, spend some money, have fun with their families, and gain an understanding and appreciation of this region's history and heritage. We want to support $ that.'

On behalf of the Board of Trustees, Neal stated, "PSNH has watched our growth and Two years ago through inlarge display ads throughout Hastings, Sharon Lyon, Con- to help us gain visibility in , nie Thurston, Alberta Merrill, a way we could never afford. GOULD ACADEMY STUDENTS NETWORK NEW BETHEL FIRE STATION—Students in Gould's Physical Networking elective completed some high-tech community service for the town of Bethel by wiring the new fire station with phone and Internet connections. The students, led by teachers Derek Dresser and Randy Autrey, learned about creating networks of phone and internet connections in a class that is not usually offered at the high school level. For their final project, the students worked together to terminate and test the circuitry of all the phone and data cables in the station, saving the town money in the process. Gould seniors Matt Humbert and Jay Steiner also contributed to the project through an independent study. They built an Internet firewall that will protect the station's computers and data from hackers and computer viruses. Here (from left), students Chris Gillio and Dan Koris, and Randy Autrey, Gould's networking specialist, teacher, and a Bethel volunteer fireman, work on wiring. (Photo by John Nesbitt)

SUN POWER—The Mahoosuc Kids afterschool program sponsored a Solar Sprint program at Telstar Middle School this spring. The students were required to design and build a solar-powered racecar that could carry an empty soda can and travel 60 feet. Using balsa wood and a solar panel, they designed, tested and raced their cars. Here (from left), Zach Hatstat, Paul Saucier and Michael MacKnight race in a qualifying competition held at Telstar. The winner, MacKnight, was invited to go to the State Solar Sprint Competition, held June 5 at the Owl's Head Transportation Museum. More than 45 cars from schools across the state participated. MacKnight won in the preliminary competitions and took second in the quarterfinals heats.
